SEWERS MUST BE BUILT TO RELIEVE

BERKSHIRE POND
Board of Health Powerless to Make Section Sanitary Until Trunk Sewers Are Provided.

Neighbors' Chickens May Now Be Removed by Simple Complaint to Board—Petition Against Cutlery Shop.

Health Commissioner George Kelly, last night said that the city would soon have to build a trunk sewer to remove unsanitary conditions in the Berkshire Mill pond caused by the dumping of sewage into the pond from the district lying to the north of it. The matter came up when a petition from O. H. Peck and a number of other residents of the district petitioned for the abatement of the nuisance caused by the burning of the oily refuse from the Atlas Shear works on Island Brook Avenue and also the emptying of sewage into the pond. Alderman E. J. Kelly, a resident of the street, expressed indignation in no uncertain terms. The clerk was instructed to stop the practice of burning the refuse lint from the shear works. The matter of the sewers will not come under the jurisdiction of the board of health until the city provides a trunk sewer which the local sewers can be connected.

The clerk had a batch of chicken complaints for the board to act upon. That active and diligent promoter of neighborhood reforms, the clerk, when received attention for a goodly portion of the evening. The board is on record as refusing to grant any further permits for the keeping of fowls in the second district. As the board will refuse to grant any permits, all that is necessary to dispose of a neighbor's fowls is to make a complaint to the board and prove that they are a nuisance and they will be consigned to the pot.

Last Fall Mrs. M. J. Casey, 576 Grand street, had a three pet fowls. She had previously complained that a neighbor's fowls were a nuisance and the board had ordered the neighbor to remove them. The neighbor retaliated by complaining of Mrs. Casey's three dominicks. (Now Mrs. Casey was very much attached to these fowls and asked the board a little time to get rid of them. They are family pets and could do many funny stunts such as slack wire walking, jumping the rope and smoking cigarettes. The board allowed them enough so that she could have one of the fowls for Thanksgiving dinner and the others for Christmas. The board said this spring Mrs. Casey quit claimed the fowls to her son and another process of notification was gone through. The board ordered the Casey fowls to the block.

The isolation hospital cost the board of health $123 last month and as the appropriation for the year is only $400 the commissioners looked up when the bills were read. The expense was larger than in any previous month since the hospital was established.

The clerk will notify W. M. Redfield agent for the 12 family block on Holby street to provide garbage and ash receptacles and also clean up the premises. Cutlery shops had their bumps at the meeting for a petition from Eusebio and 42 others to stop the vibration caused by the machinery of the Challenge Cutlery company at Kossuth and Seymour streets.

The residents of the neighborhood complain that their ceilings are jarred down and pots and kettles are vibrated off the stove. The matter was referred to the president.

The dead horse question came up and it was decided after an examination that no one has the right to remove dead animals and cart them through the city, excepting the tractor.

The complaint of the By-products company that clam shells and other non-reducible matter was delivered in the garbage was referred to the committee on garbage.

The meat and milk inspector condemned 1,250 pounds of meat during the month. The sanitary inspector was instructed to see that several unsanitary markets were put in shape in 30 days. The garbage collected for the month amounted to 1,404,210 lbs. as against 1,392,580 for the same period last year.

Revolutionary Outbreak as Result of Strike

(Special from United Press.)
Meru, France, April 14.—The officials of the General Federation of Labor arrived here today to report on the button makers' strike which is freely admitted is now a real revolutionary outbreak. In order to prove their strength the laborers have directed that a twenty-four hour strike be inaugurated in every industry here. This began this morning and the result was all that the labor leaders wanted.

So serious is the situation that the prefect of police has telegraphed Paris that more troops are needed. He admits that he has grave doubts of the loyalty of the troops in the local barracks. The officials of the Federation are in consultation at labor headquarters. They openly assert that the button manufacturers must yield at once, otherwise a strike that will be country wide will be made necessary. At the present time there has been no disorder and the bitter feeling is intense and clashes between the strikers and the troops are feared.

The smoker given by the newly formed Bridgeport Chauffeurs' club at the club rooms in the Blue Ribbon garage last night was one of the most enjoyable ever held in the city. Over 100 automobile experts were in attendance. Jerome May's orchestra furnished entertaining music. J. Warren Keene, the adept prestidigitator, doing a turn of Southport, removed and replaced the tire in 50 seconds. Tracey Smith did the trick in 1:22 and Clifford Judd in 1:30. Paine won the $2 prize for last night. The other winning prizes of $5 and $3 are open till May 1. Any chauffeur may compete at the Blue Ribbon garage at any time before the close of the season. The club was the finest ever seen at a smoker in this city. The tables were loaded with sandwiches, pies, cakes and everything imaginable in the way of good things. Coffee and ice cream followed. The rooms were tastefully decorated with potted palms and Japanese lanterns. The affair was in charge of the president of the club, J. G. Webber, chauffeur for Mrs. J. B. Hubbell of this city. W. E. Seelye of the Blue Ribbon garage was one of the most interested of those present and helped along the affair materially.

WOMAN'S BEAUTY

It Can Never Be Perfect Without Luxuriant Hair

A head of luxuriant hair is sure to be attractive. But nature has not crowned every woman with glorious hair. Some very lovable women who have harsh, faded and lusterless hair, who are unattractive simply because they do not know that nowadays even the whims of nature can be overruled by the genius of science.

OLDEST WOMAN IN AMERICA PASSES AWAY

New York, April 14.—Eight years more than a century had passed over the head of Mrs. Elizabeth Hunt when, with sight, hearing and memory practically unimpaired, she was taken ill last Friday. She died last night in the home of her grandson-in-law, Warren Ferdinand Wilkes, at No. 407 Adelphi street, Brooklyn.

Mrs. Hunt was the oldest woman in America so far as family, who are very proud of her longevity, have been able to learn. The remarkable state of good health and preservation of her faculties which continued to almost her dying day made her an object of wonder and admiration to her large circle of friends here and in Meriden and Middletown, Conn., where she spent a vacation of several weeks every summer.

Mrs. Hunt had reached the age of 105 before she found it necessary to wear eyeglasses, and her hearing up to the day of her death was as perfect as that of a young person. Her memory was extraordinary, and she frequently told in detail of occurrences of her childhood, memories of the war of 1812 and of the days she spent in her birthplace, Lancaster.

When a girl of sixteen—her years corresponded to those of the nineteenth century which expired before she died—she came to New York to visit relatives, and especially to see General Lafayette, who was then visiting the United States. Mrs. Hunt often told of her presentation to the distinguished visitor at a reception, and said he had cordially shaken her hand and spoken with her for a moment.

During her annual summer visit to Middletown three years ago Mrs. Hunt fell and rolled down 18 steps. Her shoulder was dislocated and a physician who attended her expected serious results. The aged woman, however, threw off the effects very rapidly and within two weeks was able to return to Brooklyn and the home of her granddaughter there.

After her marriage in Lancaster Mrs. Hunt came to New York with her husband, Jacob, making the journey by stage, as she made many others, of which she delighted to tell. They soon went to Middletown to live, but remained there only one year, returning to New York and taking up their residence in the lower part of the then small city.

When the civil war began Mr. Hunt had seven sons and three of them took up arms for the federal cause. Her husband died in 1861 and her sons and two sons-in-law suffered wounds in the war.

Until last week she never had any serious illness that any of her grandchildren can remember. On Good Friday she was attacked by a severe cold and went to bed. She arose on Saturday and went about the simple duties she imposed upon herself, but was compelled to return to her bed, and bronchitis developed, reaching a fatal termination at half-past seven o'clock last night.

Every year it was the custom of Mrs. Hunt to be in Middletown for a reunion of the family, and a celebration of her birthday on August 31. Each new president gave her pleasure by enabling her to recite on those occasions another name added to the long list from John Adams, who have occupied the White House from her birth. Of her seven children, all sons only two survive, and there are eleven great-grandchildren. There are several grandchildren.

LONG SUFFERING WOMAN IS DEAD BY OWN DECREE

Mrs. Addie W. Moore, 35 years of age, wife of Edward B. Moore, accomplished suicide by asphyxiation some time yesterday afternoon, at her home 602 Laurel avenue. Her remains were found by her husband, when he returned from his work as lineman of the N. Y. E. Telephone Co., at 6 o'clock, last night. Mrs. Moore had been ill for months. She suffered from melancholia. The woman made careful preparation for her act. She went to the upper room, and placed a rocking chair near a gas jet. After adjusting a rubber tube to the jet, she sat in the chair, placed the end of the tube in her mouth and inhaled the gas until asphyxiation followed. The tube was still flowing through it, when the tragedy was discovered.

Mrs. Moore's death is a shock to many friends by whom she was well liked.

Dependancy over continued ill health is assigned as the cause of her act.

Medical Examiner F. B. Downs found that death resulted from suicidal inhalation of gas.

Obtained the Elevator Man.
New York elevator operators have a dislike of the word "next."

"It is too confusing," said one man. "For example, two men stepped into my car the other day. One said, 'Fifth floor.' The other said, 'Next.' I stopped at the second floor and waited and waited for the man who had ordered 'next' to get off. He flew into a rage. 'I don't want this floor,' he said. 'I said the sixth floor. Didn't the other fellow say 'Fifth,' and didn't I say 'Next,' and isn't sixth next after fifth? Huh?'"

"The following day one passenger called out, 'Third floor,' and the other said 'Next' at the same time. I thought I knew my business that time. I hustled the third floor man right up to his landing and took the chap who wanted 'next' on to the fourth floor. He was angry also. 'What did you bring me up here for when I wasn't looking?' he thundered. 'Didn't you hear me say next? 'Yes,' said I, 'but the other man said third—' 'I don't give a rap,' said he, 'what the other man said. We were then on the first floor, and when I said next didn't that mean second? I'll report you for inattention, that's what I'll do.'"

"And that is what he did do," sighed the operator. "Clearly the word 'next' ought to be abolished."—New York Sun.

The Old Fashioned "Hired Girl."
The "hired girl" (we never, never alluded to her as "the maid" in the small American town or quiet country place where you and I were "raised") was like one of the family, and mother was glad to have her help, and none of us put on any frills with her, and she was not compelled to put on any frills of cap or apron with us. Ofttimes, especially in the quiet country places, her social standing was as good as that of anybody else. Usually she was one of a grown family of girls. There was plenty of help at her house, and so she came and assisted our mother at our house. In their hours of ease mother and she discussed the neighborhood gossip together. The "hired girl" had her bean, a neighbor's staid, sheepish son, and much was she joked about him, and finally, after years of faithful and friendly servitude, she married him. We went to the wedding, and it was quite a social affair, with much temperate merriment and with many cheap but useful presents.—Everybody's Magazine.

Webster's Compliment.

While it is well known that Daniel Webster is speaking of General Taylor's candidacy for the office of president pronounced it "a nomination not fit to be made," he never failed to do justice to the general's military abilities and eminent service in the field. On one occasion he paid the old soldier a delicate and well deserved compliment. General Taylor was complaining of the crowds of people who daily besieged him soon after his accession to the presidency.

"They interfere," he said, "with my official engagements and violate my domestic retirement, but still I do not wish to turn my back upon my friends."

"You never did upon your enemies, general," Mr. Webster instantly replied.
